Mr. 1991 cited the estimate made by Pr. Levy and expressed the opinion that the city's population would approach the 150,000 mark if it did not go beyond it before next July. The directory expert said that the population of the territory covered by the directory this year was estimated last year at 185,280. This territory embraces Westhampton, Lakeside and the National Cemetery on the north side of the river and the suburbs almost as far as Petersburg on the south side. All of this territory is regarded as suburban tilchmond. Mr. IIIII cited the estimate made by RichMr. Hill said it depended upon the measure of co-operation given the Richmond will have a population of 153,000 on July 1, 1915.

That is the estimate, based upon a computation from statistics such as Dr. E. C. Levy, chief health officer of the city, employed when he made public his estimate of the city's population two months before the figures of the last United States Census were published. Dr. Levy's estimate was within 100 of
